

Co-Creating Matriarchal Design Futures

a collective work in progress

If we center our values and principles as matriarchal instead of patriarchal, how does this change how we work, communicate, and think about the future?

We propose a collective work-in-progress to create matriarchal guiding principles which will help us lead, teach, learn and continue examining the intersection of design education and the design industry through a matriarchal lens.